Dear Brethren:

Assisting Those Who Struggle with Faith and Testimony

The technology and modern communication tools of our day enable members, more than ever before, to access both positive and negative information about the Church. Unfortunately some choose to dwell on half-truths or inaccurate information regarding the Church, its history, or its leaders, which often results in a crisis of faith and testimony.

We invite you as priesthood leaders to work patiently and lovingly with these members in a way that is most likely to address their concerns and help them regain their spiritual equilibrium. The attached document has some suggestions for your consideration in working with members who are struggling. We also hope you will help all members under your care understand the need to continually and consistently do those things that will strengthen their faith and testimonies.

We are so grateful for your dedicated service. May you feel the Lord's guidance as you strive to bless the lives of His children.

With warm regards,

Erich W. Kopischke
Europe Area President

Second Counselor, Europe Area Presidency
